Learn some effective one-on-one leadership skills to help motivate individuals and teams.

What will the participants learn in this training session?

The Leadership Effectiveness for Individual and Small Group Leaders course is a very interactive, 40-hour, basic/introductory leadership course, based on behavioral and social science leadership theories and practices. This course focuses on three key leadership areas: Leading Individuals, Leading Groups, and Understanding the Leaders Role/Authority/Power, and gives the student a chance to explore their own leadership potential while developing proven leadership skill. This course has no prerequisites.

Who are the best people to attend this training?

This course is designed to increase the leadership competency for those who supervise others, who are leaders of individuals or small groups (Trainers, Supervisors Sergeants, Managers, and Lieutenants). This course is also a preparatory leadership class for those who are seeking to advance to a leadership position, or who have been placed in an acting leadership position.

Learn how to recognize what stage your teams are in and how to move them into performing

Learn how you can be supportive while still getting the employee to perform to expectations.

Chief Adam McGill - Chief of Police, Truckee Police Department said:

"I brought in CMF Leadership Consultants to provide some comprehensive leadership training for my entire department. CMF was easy to work with and tailored the class to meet Truckee PD's specific needs. Chris and Craig rolled out a 40 hour course rich in realistic usable leadership curriculum along with a perfect mix of team building and retreat like management discussions. The feedback from my staff has been very positive with people feeling like the course really set us on a path from good to great. I highly recommend the 'Leadership Effectiveness' training course and CMF Leadership Consulting."
